

Inside Out

Turn your inside out – onto the page, into the world, and out of your system.

Part literary publication, part therapeutic expression, Inside Out promotes the use of creativity for personal development. A new breed of literary arts magazine, it encourages the submission and publication of work with a focus on self-awareness and self-help; because, sometimes, simply owning something on the page is all it takes to move past it and move on, for both reader and creator.
